TW'S SEASON 1993

A wise and understated comedy. When confronted by crises, Marvin's family tends to unify and straddle a very thin line between the horrific and the absurd.

The musical theater magic of Kander & Ebb.

Broadway's most talented team of musical composers have been turning out catchy, jazzy songs for over a quarter of a century. Here is the best of the best from this dynamic duo.

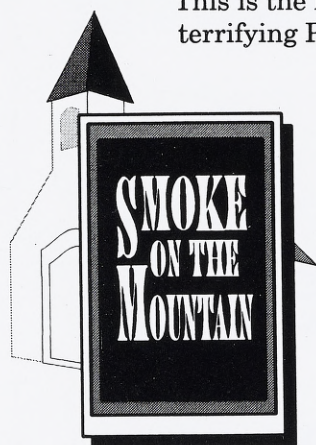

A great classic of country life. The bittersweet, deeply human aura of real people helplessly in thrall to events and feelings beyond their control.

Shakespeare's most lovable fantasy. "What fools these mortals be." It's a dream world of magic potions and transformed lovers in which there is seemingly no end to the confusion and mistaken identities.

A musical thriller.

This is the most beautiful, the most moving, the most terrifying Phantom of the Opera ever. A wonderfully romantic mystery thriller will have you shouting for joy.

A rollicking gospel comedy musical.

A Saturday night sing at the Mount Pleasant, North Carolina, Baptist Church in the depression year of 1938. It's plain old-fashioned musical fun as everyone gets into the act.

A lovely and deeply moving commemoration. A Masterpiece of humane play writing. Five sisters are eking out a life on the outskirts of a tiny little town in Ireland in 1936. When the sisters finally dance to a wild Irish tune, they come to embody the core of the human spirit that cannot be vanquished by time or loss, or fully expressed in language.
